"Atlantic Graveyard"
The Cape Hatteras region of North Carolina has claimed more than 2,200 ships and is often called the "Graveyard of the Atlantic"

FIRST EUROPEAN rocket engine using liquid oxygen and hydrogen is readied for test-firing at the Melun-Villaroche air field in France. An engineer leaves the test bench after a final check.

"INFINITY" is the name of this abstract sculpture, the first abstract work commissioned by the federal government in Washington, D.C. Designed by sculptor Jose de Rivera, and built with the help of fellow sculptor Roy Gussow, the work was erected recently at the Smithsonian Institution's Museum of History and Technology in Washington. It is 16 feet high, 13 feet six inches wide, and eight feet high. Its highly polished surfaces are made of stainless steel, and the "lazy 8" revolves one full revolution every six minutes atop its black granite base.

DO-IT-YOURSELF

Vise Is an Extra Pair Of Hands in Workshop

By MR. FIX

No home workshop is really well-equipped unless it has a vise. This is a basic tool that is absolutely essential in any job where material must be firmly held while working on it.

When you mount a machine tool, you place it on one corner of the bench so that the face of the fixed jaw is slightly forward of the edge of the bench. This will permit clearance for objects that project downward.

A workholder vise is preferred at such a location. This type is not fastened to the top of the bench. It is suspended on the front of the bench so that the top edge of the fixed jaw is flush with the top of the bench.

Law on such a vise are about 4 to 6 inches to 1 by 10 inches. The jaws are made of smooth steel with holes provided so that the jaw can be used with pieces of wood to protect the material you are working on.

Both types of vises are available in clamp-on models where portability is needed. These can be mounted on a saw horse or a tabletop.

Any vise must be mounted correctly so that it doesn't wobble. Tighten only with the main handle. Do not apply extra leverage by extending the handle with a length of pipe or by pounding on the handle.

Keep jaw clean free of dirt and smooth line with wood or other soft materials whenever the work must be protected.

Most models have a wide base. You can turn the base in any direction and lock it in place.

Below the flat surface of each jaw you are likely to

First Coin

The "Continental Currency" dollar of 1776 was the first coin struck for the United States, probably in Birmingham, England. It established a monetary unit on which all the states agreed.

Wives Going to Bumps, Grinds

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP) — A do-it-yourself author advised today that housewives tired of the same old grind may want to add a few bumps.

Libby Jones—a blonde striptease dancer with a figure—41-26-37—not quite like the average housewife's, said the amateur stripper first needs a floor-length chemise, gloves, black mesh stockings, bra and panty girdle.

Miss Jones said Jane Housewife should then grab a copy of her book, "How to Strip," and get ready to give the old man the surprise of his life when he comes trudging home from the office.

As she puffed on a cigarette in a long black cigarette holder backstage at a Baltimore burlesque theater, Miss Jones said she thought her book would be good for housewives "and good for their husbands, if they learned that taking it off might inject a new element in a humdrum marriage."

First Woman to Preach in Church

LONDON (AP) — Janet Lacey, 64, became the first woman to preach a Sabbath service at London's historic St. Paul's Cathedral.

Miss Lacey is director of Christian Aid, a charitable organization. She spoke Sunday on interdenominational cooperation to overcome famine in Asia and Africa.

A CURE FOR JEALOUSY?

Dear Helen: I have a problem that if I don't get help for soon, it will end a wonderful thing. It's the problem of jealousy.

My boy friend is the best. I know he loves me, but I can't stop worrying. Even when he looks at a pretty girl on TV, I start an argument. I don't mean to, but when he so much as glances at another girl, I feel "UGLY." He insists I'm not, but...

I tell myself that it's a guy's way to look at girls, but I feel so bad about it I start to cry. I have gotten myself sick over this and I just have to stop. My boy friend gives me compliments and he isn't a flirt, but if he says one word to another girl, there I go again.

Can you or anybody help me get over being - JEALOUS AND FEELING "UGLY"?

Dear Jealous:

The only way you'll lick unreasonable jealousy is by reasoning out what's behind it and I mean a long ways back. You have one whole of an inferiority complex. What has caused it? Why do you feel "ugly" when you aren't? Find the real sources of your trouble—difficult parents? Shyness? Bad experiences in your early life? Nerves? Worry over defects other than your own? If so, then bring them out in the open and knock them down to size. If, for example, you can trace jealousy back to a lonely childhood, think how much easier it will be for you to say, "But I'm no longer that left-out child. I'm loved and wanted, and I've a right to be proud of myself."

When you can feel honest pride in your accomplishments and in the way you look and act when you can truly believe a compliment and know it is deserved, then you'll be able to put down jealousy. Well, not entirely, but your new self-assurance will help you hide it—H.

Dear Helen: My boy friend and I have been going to the Drive-In theater every Saturday night for nearly six months. All of a sudden he has decided we should take up ice skating on Saturdays. Drive-ins are more cozy. Do you think he just doesn't want to be alone with me anymore?—DRIVE-IN ADDICT

Dear DIA: Maybe he wants to cool it—for everybody's good.—H.

Dear Helen: I met a girl a year ago and am very fond of her. I've dated her several times, and can't understand her attitude. It's not that I'm forward, I'm shy.

So why does she say no more than a quick "bye," shoot out of the car and into the house, not even giving me time to walk her to the door? If she likes me well enough to go out with me, couldn't she at least let me know she enjoyed the evening?—F.H.B.

Dear F: Your girl needs a refresher course in manners. Shyness is no excuse for rudeness.

...But wait: maybe there's a boy-eating father just inside the front door. Don't put her down until you know for sure she isn't protecting you.—H.

Television and Radio

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

AP Television-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — This has not been a particularly impressive season for documentary programs with the exception of "Africa," ABC's four-hour study early in September. But good, bad or indifferent, they fall into two basic types of presentation.

There is the "information documentary," which is usually a service type of program and, as one network executive explained, "You take a subject and make pictures about it, and then you add a voice that tells you the meaning of what you are seeing."

The other type, utilizing a familiar journalistic technique, tackles a big dramatic issue and explores it in terms of a little story "microcosm" such as showing the drug problem in terms of one man's addiction.

Lester Cooper, who makes documentaries for ABC, prefers the latter. And next Monday night his half hour special, "Can You Hear Me?" is very special to him. It will tell the story of a little girl named Beth Ann who is 2½ years old and who was born deaf. It shows how she has been learning with the help of infinitely patient and gentle family members and teachers to break out of that silent, lonely prison.

Cooper, a sensitive man of middle years, has made excellent documentaries on air pollution, narcotic addiction, Negro slums, the Vietnam war—all the big, pressing subjects so dear to documentary makers.

But this program is different, for Lester Cooper himself is partially deaf. He has undergone several operations but now has lost all hearing in one ear because of nerve destruction. So the problems of the deaf are close to him, particularly those of children who have never been able to hear the sound of a human voice.

He chose Los Angeles' John Tracy Clinic—founded by Mrs. Spencer Tracy whose son was born deaf—for the source of the program and arbitrarily picked Beth Ann, who was about to enter the clinic, as his subject. He had a marvelous piece of luck since the cameras followed along as parents and tutors worked with the child in an effort to get her to speak.

But after all the weeks of work, Beth Ann, who was making progress, had not spoken her first word when the TV crew was winding up. A piece of film turned out bad, so Cooper sent his men back. On that day the girl spoke her first word—"ball"—and the camera and sound equipment caught it all.

Grigir Bergman speaks the commentary written by Cooper.

Their Second Country

Three German composers Handel, Haydn and Mendelssohn regarded England as their second country. Handel was the only one who became a naturalized English citizen.

Davis and Wife to Get Divorce

NEW YORK AP—Columnist Earl Wilson said today that actor Sammy Davis Jr. and his wife of seven years, Mai Britt, were getting a divorce because they had problems.

In a copyright article in the New York Post, Wilson said the Negro singer and actor told friends in Las Vegas, Nev., that he and his blonde, Swedish wife had separated and that she and the attorneys would announce the divorce shortly.

Wilson said that Mrs. Davis did not attend her husband's opening at the Sands Hotel in Las Vegas, nor did she spend Thanksgiving with him. He quoted Davis as saying he had left the $320,000 Los Angeles home he had just purchased and moved into a hotel.

"Mai and I have problems," Wilson quoted Davis as telling his close friend, Frank Sinatra, whose trial separation from his youthful wife, Mia Farrow, was reported Wednesday.

The Davis-Britt interracial marriage Nov. 13, 1960 caused criticism. At the time, Davis was quoted as saying, "I don't care whether my kids are black white or polka, etc."

The couple have a daughter, Tracy, 6, and two adopted sons, Mark and Jeff. Davis agent here said of the report, "I assume it's correct. This has been coming on... He travels so much this is breaking up his marriage. He's always away from home."

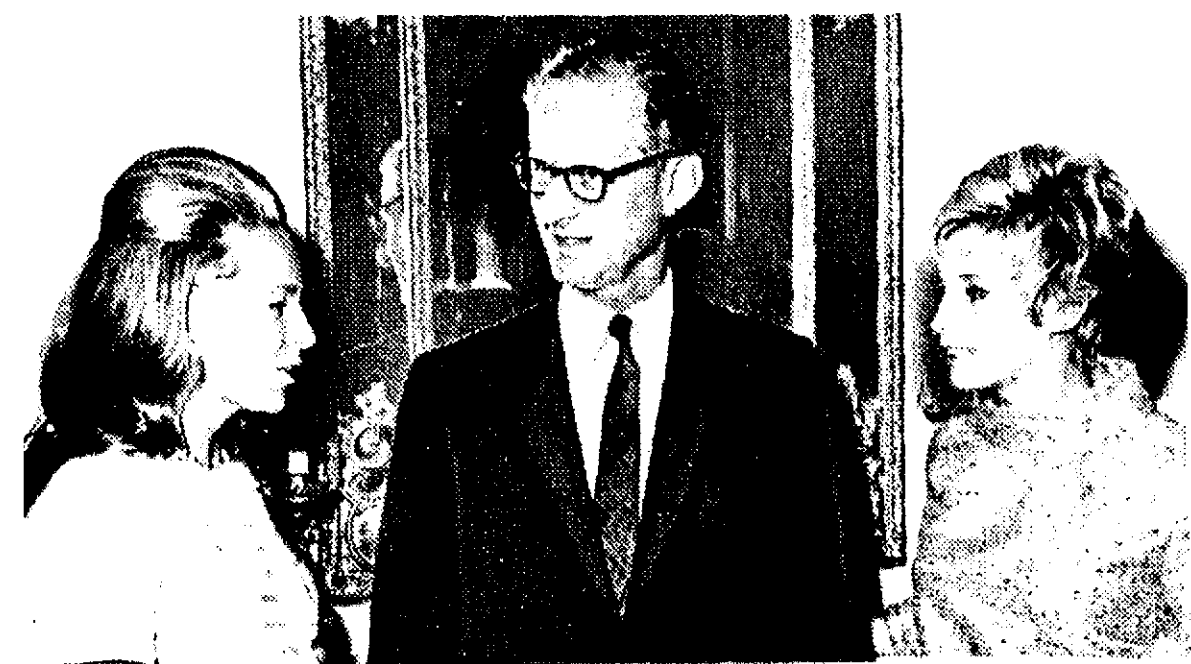

The agent said, however, he could neither deny nor confirm that the Davises were getting a divorce.

Show Off Bedmaking

Know how to show your bed-making to advantage? When using a patterned top sheet, put the sheet on wrong side up. The large hem touches the headboard. Tuck in the same amount at the foot of the bed, miter corners and pull sheet taut. Put on blanket or comforter and turn hem down over blanket edge.

Save Buffing Time

The new self-polishing cleaner-waxes for wood floors save a homemaker buffing time. However, they cannot be re-buffed between waxings and the old wax, especially paste wax, should be removed before a self-cleaning wax is applied the first time. Do not use soap and water. Clean the floor by wiping small areas with the wax while it dries.

MRS. CHARLOTTE FORD NIARCHOS, co-chairman, and Robert Morgenthau, president of the Police Athletic League, and Mrs. John Mosler, general chairman, discuss plans for the Reemay Paper Ball about the liner Michelangelo for the benefit of the PAL.

HELEN HENNESSY'S BOUTIQUE

NEW YORK — (NEA) — When you see a news photo of a socialite chairman of a charity benefit, do you wonder how much she does for the particular charity, other than lending her name?

I talked with Sheila Mosler, chairman of the Reemay Paper Ball held on the Italian liner, Michelangelo, for the benefit of the Police Athletic League and asked just how involved the chairman and committee get in the organization of a charity gala.

Sheila, wife of industrialist John Mosler, chairman of the board of the Mosler Safe Co., is rich, young, blonde, pretty and the mother of three.

At her suggestion, we lunched at New York's Four Seasons restaurant and I fully expected the arrival of an elegant, well-turned out woman who looked like every photo I've seen of the rich, beautiful young people. Instead, I was joined by a tired girl, casually dressed and laden with folders and attache cases.

All morning she had been working in New York's overcrowded Harlem where there is no public high school—working with the founders, of which she is one, of the new Harlem Prep School created to fill that dreadful void.

She fled Harlem away for future attention and concentrated on the Reemay Paper Ball.

"The reason for this ball," she said, "is to make PAL famous—to make people realize the tremendous amount of good it does for young people. The police department really is a benevolent organization." Mrs. Mosler is a director of PAL—a time-consuming job.

I asked how one goes about organizing such a huge party. Is a public relations agency hired to do all the work?

"Not if you want to make money for the charity," she said. "You use your friends. You get as much as you can in donations and if 60 to 80 per cent of the take doesn't go to the charity, it's not worth the effort."

"First I gave a kick-off party at my home. We had 300 people and at the evening's end had 150 patrons—all new blood." Charlotte Ford Niarcho and Wendy Vanderbilt did a magnificent job of helping.

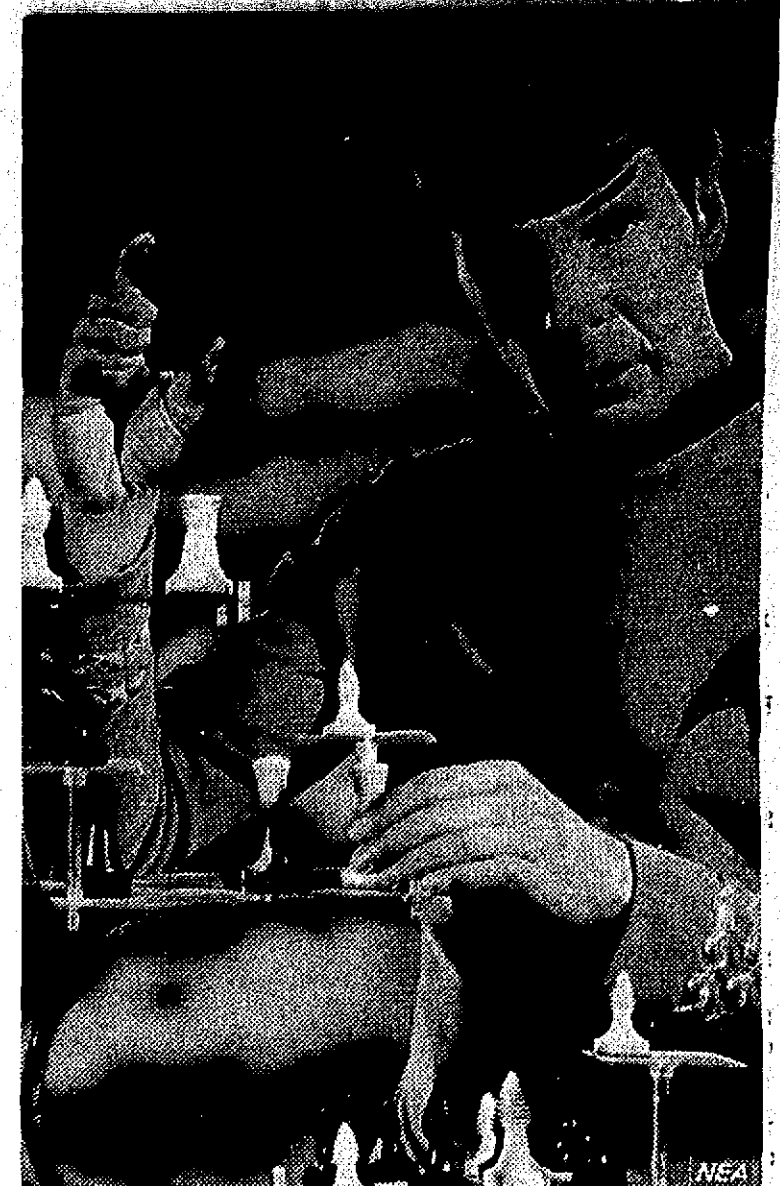

Hours in personal and phone contacts were involved, with the result that the music, wine, decorations, invitations all were donated—as well as such raffle prizes as a Fiat from Fiat-Roosevelt Motors, a mink coat from Ben Kahn and a gold-and-diamond brooch from Erwin Pearl's Veneto 57.

The use of Reemay "paper" for the dresses modeled in the fashion show and to decorate the Michelangelo was a gimmick that added pique to the project.

Charlotte Ford Niarcho wore a Bill Blass, Anne Uziel, a Chester Weinberg, Anne Slater a Scassi, Mrs. John Mosler an Oscar de la Renta, Mrs. James Farley Jr. a Jo Copeland and Mrs. Peter Duchin a maternity dress by Baba—a wise choice of model since she's expecting a baby anyway.

Chairman Sheila Mosler honestly believes that if you "ask for a worthy cause you will receive." And she also feels that it is among the women that you will find the workers.

Of her work with the Harlem Prep School, PAL, Women's Adoption International Fund (WAIF) and her appointment by Gov. Rockefeller to the State Committee on LEONARD NIMOY, he of the pointy-ears, is a big star these days, thanks to Star Trek. But Leonard, a Boston boy, is very down to earth in real life.

Mr. Spock's Trek to Stardom

By DICK KLEINER
NEA Hollywood Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD — (NEA) — You never know about fame. Like the measles, it seems to strike unexpectedly, often in the strangest places. Currently, fame has come to Leonard Nimoy, old pointy-ears of Star Trek.

Even Nimoy finds what's happened to him hard to believe, but he isn't planning to send it back. He gets more fan mail than almost anybody else at NBC; he's the darling of the fan magazine set; he is constantly the target of adoring teenyboppers who write him, phone him, accost him.

It's hard to understand. He's handsome enough, in a sensitive way, but hardly the usual raw material of idolhood. Basically, he's an actor and a good one. He is a settled family man, some years removed from teen-aggess, and not the flashy, moist-lipped sort the young girls usually select.

It was only a few years ago that Nimoy, to make ends meet, was getting up at 3 a.m. to deliver newspapers. The $100 a month he made supplemented the meager living he was eking out as an actor, and, with a wife and two children to support, he needed it.

Those days are gone now, on the cheerful wings of his success as Mr. Spock, the coolly efficient first officer aboard the Enterprise, Star Trek's interplanetary space ship. He is cashing in on that triumph—records, personal appearances—and the day after the series goes off, whenever that is, he will have his choice of movies or television series. As they say in the trade, he's hot.

He is adjusting to success with a minimum of traumas. The Nimoy's live in the same house they lived in before the lightning struck. The children go to the same schools. Leonard drives a used Buick to the studio. Sandy, his wife, buys more clothes than she did before, but that's about the extent of her frivolities.

The family likes boating. But they haven't gone out and bought a boat. As they did before, they go down to the ocean when the urge sweeps over them, and they rent a sailboat—$6 for the afternoon.

"If I had the time now that I had then," Nimoy says, "maybe I'd buy a boat. But I don't. In the old days, I had the time, but not the money."

The old days—three or four years ago—was when things were rough. It has been an uphill-all-the-way struggle for Nimoy.

He's from Boston. His father, a Russian immigrant, is still a barber in Boston. He is naturally proud of his son's success, but regrets that he can no longer cut Leonard's hair.

"My father is an old-fashioned barber," he says. "When he cuts your hair, you know you've had a haircut. When I go home on a visit now, with this haircut I've got for the show, I can't let him touch my hair. He's very disappointed."

Leonard cut out for Los Angeles at 19, determined to act. He studied, he worked, he managed to get a few parts. But it was slow, tediously slow. He did his two years in the Army. During that time he got married and Sandy and he had their first child.

After his discharge, it was back to the old treadmill. He might have made $2,000 a year acting. Often he wanted to quit but Sandy talked him into sticking with it. He stuck. He worked at many jobs on the side, to pay the rent and the grocery bills.

Gradually, things got better. By the time Star Trek came along, he was known as a competent character actor around town. At the time of the Star Trek offer, he also could have taken a running part on Peyton Place—the Steven Cord role which James Douglas plays.

He made the right choice. Star Trek made him a big man in the world.

BARBS

By WALTER C PARKES

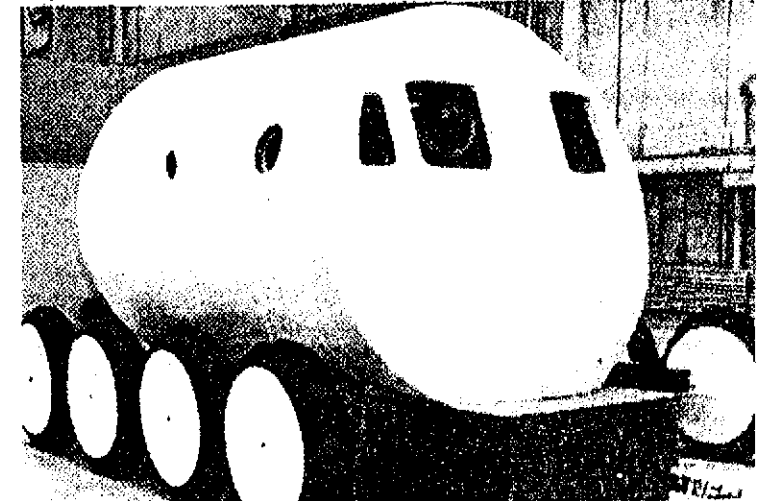

A handily we know isn't handwritten necessarily, but she's never been known to refuse to take in a rumor.

A report of the month's most popular department has been begun to reveal the happenings from Christmas through

Late Show Sat. At Saenger Also Sunday & Monday

David Niven as Sir James Bond, the original 007, learns he had a real wrong number in Ursula Andress, in this scene from Charles K. Feldman's exuberant "Casino Royale." Columbia Pictures release in Panavision and Technicolor. The two are among the 17 international stars of the film, which has several James Bonds and some 200 international beauties. The man with the gun is a henchman.

HEADED FOR THE MOON—possibly—is this unusual self-propelled vehicle featuring a unique "walking beam" suspension system designed to perform well on rugged terrain. Dreamed up by Northrop Corp., it is being studied by the Army Tank Automotive Command as one of several new suspension systems for high mobility vehicles.

FAITH OPENS NEW HORIZONS WHEN YOU OPEN THE CHURCH DOOR

it takes so little faith

If you had faith as a grain of mustard seed..." That's not much faith. But just look what God said you could do with so little. The mustard seed is the tiniest of seeds. Here the huge microscope enlarges it many times...yet, one can scarcely see it. The Lord said, If you have that much faith you can do anything! You can say to a mountain, "move over" and it will be done. You can endure anything...you can become anything—IF, you have a wee bit of faith. Faith is the root of all blessing. The man who is without it is dead as a cinder. The Pilgrims had faith. Martin Luther and John Wesley had faith. Jesus was supremely a man of faith and waits to share his blessings on men who can be trusted...men of faith. How much faith do you have? Is your faith as big as the mustard seed?

Come let us go into the House of the Lord

If you ever get into an argument with your partner as to who went wrong in the bidding, make it a point to bet that his bidding was wrong and not that your bidding was correct.

West opened the king of hearts against the doubled three no-trump contract. South took dummy's ace and played the queen of clubs which West allowed to hold. A diamond finesse lost to West's king and West shifted to the jack of spades. South struggled along, but the best he could do was to hold his loss to three tricks.

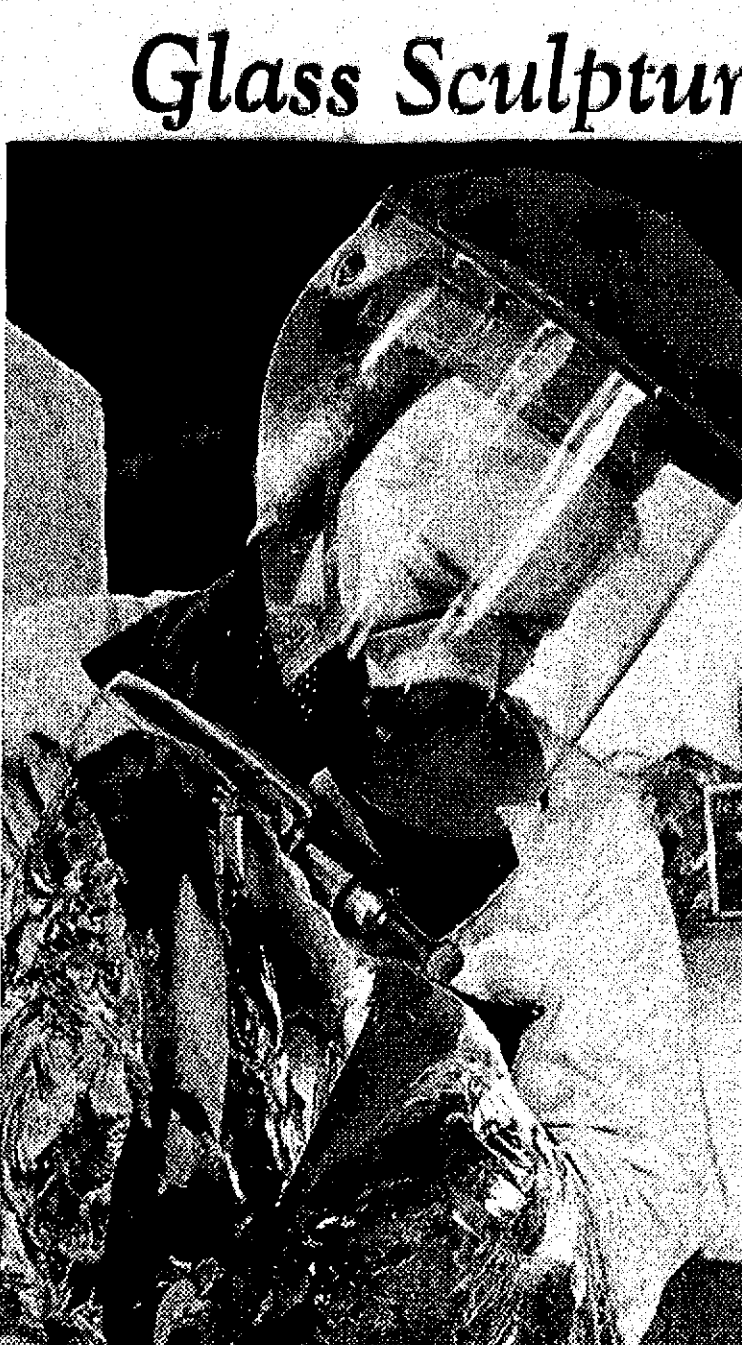

North was bitter about South's opening bid. He wanted to know how anyone could play with a partner who opened a 10 point hand and continued to bid as if he had a sound opening. South wanted to know if North had never heard of a misfit and suggested that North should have quit at three clubs.

It is a pretty good rule that when a partnership goes down three tricks at a voluntary game bid that both partners contributed something to the debacle and this hand is no exception.

As a starter, we don't like the opening club bid. Ten point openings are not all bad, but South's strength was all in the minors, his suit was a broken one, and three of his points were represented by a queen and a jack while only four of his points were in his own suit.

As for North, we don't like his two spade rebid. When West made his delayed take-out double, North should have re-double. East would run out to two diamonds. North would probably try two hearts. South would go back to three clubs and North would be able to pass. Three clubs would probably be one down, but one down undoubled is a reasonable loss.

YOUR DENTAL HEALTH

Family Eating Habits Affect Their Teeth

By WILLIAM LAWRENCE, D.D.S.

Mary Jane is a tall, willowy, silky-blond, 19-year-old girl with a bright smile exposing front teeth that are just crooked enough to lend special charm to her face. There are many fillings in her front teeth but, as someone once told her, "Don't worry about those fillings. If any man gets close enough to see them, he probably won't be interested in your teeth."

When MJ laughs, it's quite a different story, and it's no laughing matter. Her back teeth are so filled with silver amalgam there's hardly any visible tooth structure left. Some teeth have four and five fillings. MJ must have spent days and days in the dental chair and doubtless made her dentist very rich.

What happened to MJ's teeth? Was it lack of care? Poor dentistry? Genetic fault? Poor diet? Poor general health? Poor mouth hygiene? Why should this girl "who has everything going for her" have such sick teeth?

It certainly isn't lack of care, and she's in obviously good health. Nor is it poor dentistry. Her dentist must have been a genius to have interlocked multiple fillings so cleverly as to hold them and the crowns of her teeth together.

It's not poor hygiene. She claims she brushes after every meal and examination proved it; her teeth were clean. There was no soft food or tartar or debris of any kind on them.

Then, what is it? Reasons are complex. There just isn't any clear explanation available. But at least one interesting fact emerged from her history.

MJ's parents lost their teeth early in life. And as a child she remembers "how funny grandpop talked" with his dentures.

Composition of teeth, arrangement in the jaw, resistance to decay may be inherited characteristics but they are deeply influenced by family eating habits.

MJ's family are great sugar eaters. Pops are eaten in cereal, coffee and desserts in soft ice cream and candy. The family's favorite snack is bananas dipped in chocolate.

Could MJ's tooth sickness have been prevented? To a great extent, yes. The big word is prevention, and the best-known means of prevention are: ingested and topical application of fluorides; whole-some balanced diet, low in sugars, and, maybe, parents with good teeth.

Critics Fail to Put Dent in Johnson

WASHINGTON (AP) — The anti-Vietnam war critics and demonstrators annoy President Johnson but they don't put a dent in him.

Their hopes for peace face a bleak future at least until the 1968 elections, unless somehow the war ends before then. Nothing of the kind is in sight.

Recent and not so recent statements by Johnson and top men around him in fighting this war show grim determination to keep on fighting it.

For instance, Gen. Earle G. Wheeler, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, looking beyond Vietnam, said months ago this country would be involved in Asia until the end of the century.

Last May in Look magazine he said the American interest "in the Far Pacific is precisely what our interest was in the late '40's and '50's in Europe."

In the same issue of the magazine Secretary of State Dean Rusk predicted it will be "useful for some time to come for American power to be able to control every wave of the Pacific, if necessary."

And this week Johnson showed his unbending determination to go on with the war.

The Machinist, a labor magazine, quoted him as saying: "I may wind up with a poll of one per cent before it's over with."

Recent public opinion polls showed his popularity, and public confidence in him at a new low.

He said, "We can't end it (the war) with honor by surrender. We can't end it with honor by negotiations because the enemy will not negotiate with us." Until there are negotiations, he said, "It is going to be tough but we are just going to have to stand up and take it."

At a White House Dinner Tuesday night, Johnson illustrated his will to go on by quoting from President Abraham Lincoln in the depths of the Civil War: "Let us . . . dare to do our duty as we understand it."

Nor is there any softening in the administration's position about continuing the bombing of North Vietnam.

In the past year Johnson and Rusk have said repeatedly that despite previous pauses in the air raids the United States cannot now "stop half the war."

Their condition for halting the bombing is, and has been, some reciprocal action by North Vietnam to scale down its own military operations.

This week Johnson is meeting with U.S. military and political chiefs stationed in Vietnam. They have advised against any extension of the bombing pause which this country may permit for the upcoming Vietnamese holidays of Christmas and New Year.

One of them, Ellsworth Bunker, U.S. ambassador to Vietnam, gave Johnson a rather optimistic report on progress there but warned the road ahead is tough and long.

Steele Is at End of Long Gray Line

By IRA BERKOW
NEA Sports Writer

WEST POINT, N.Y.—(NEA)—Life for the first Negro varsity football player in Army history is filled with travail.

"The biggest problem this year," said Gary Steele, junior tight end, "is my course in thermodynamics."

"Next year, I'll be sweating nuclear physics."

His problems are not confined to the classroom. After playing split end on the Plebe squad, he was shifted to tight end where he became a starter his sophomore year.

"When you're at split end," said the 6-5, 215-pounder, you're nose-to-nose with these terms with ease. At tight end, you're nose to nose with these big tackles."

In the beginning, I kept getting knocked on my seat. Now I'm doing a little knocking of my own."

One of the most reverberating contacts he had made this season was at the Cotton Bowl in Dallas. Army was playing Southern Methodist. It was one of the last plays of the game and Army led 24-6. Jerry Levias, SMU fleet flanker, caught a punt. He was immediately met by Steele. The collision was resounding. Levias, who had faced racial difficulties last season, and Steele were the only two Negroes on the field.

"I had to do it," Steele said, afterward, "or he might have gone for a touchdown."

Being the first Negro varsity football player at Army means, to Gary Steele, nothing more than battling to keep his position at tight end, staying alive in the classroom and keeping in step in parades.

Steele was a star football and basketball player and high jumper on the track team at Woodrow Wilson High School in Levittown, Pa. Recruiters from over 50 colleges beat imploringly on the Steele door.

"When I decided to go to Army," he said, "I gave no thought to any firsts of my race. My father is a retired Army major. I was raised on Army posts in Germany, Japan and America."

The United States Military Academy has 3,100 cadets enrolled. About 40 are Negroes. "We've had Negroes on the freshman football team," said head coach Tom Cahill, "and they have also been on most every other team here. But I'll admit it. I'm prejudiced—in favor of guys like Gary."

Steele said he feels different at West Point. "For two reasons. First, I'm 6-5. Second, I'm a football player, and people know me. Otherwise, I'm like anyone else here—hoping to make rank."

The first time Steele went South was last fall when Army played Tennessee at Memphis. "I was concerned about it," said Steele. "But there were no incidents."

Coch Cahill was solicitous about that evening. "After every game," said Cahill, "I let the boys go out on the town alone. I remind all the boys to behave like cadets. It's often unnecessary, especially for a guy of Gary's high caliber. But I did remind him that he was in Memphis."

And did Gary run into difficulty? "Yes," he said. "I hurt my leg in the game and had to stay in bed all night."

New Twists in '4-Week' Season

* The professional football team you're seeing now is not the same one you saw in September, physically or emotionally. We're getting into what I call the "four-week season"—the last month down the home stretch.

On each roster, there are from 8 to 10 different names because of injuries. Every team has them. So there's a greater reliance on taxi squad members and guys coming off the bench. Two weeks ago, Randy Minniear was playing for the Westchester Bulls against the Waterbury Bears and lucky to have 3,000 people watching what he was doing. Now he's in front of 63,000 every Sunday and big money is riding on his moves.

But that's getting ahead of my story.

To me, the drama of what football's all about happened last year to a man named

Elijah Pitts who came from some small school named Philander Smith. I had to look it up to be sure.

Anyhow, Elijah has been with the Green Bay Packers seven years. When he first came, he was scared and unsure of himself. His first training camp, he was afraid to get out of his room. The spirited—I was about to say spiritual—leader of the Packers was his competition. Paul Hornung, like Elijah, played halfback on offense and carried the club. He made the big plays.

Hornung showed the kind of man he was when he ducked into Elijah's room one night and said, "Hey, kid, you're coming with us. And he took the rookie from Philander Smith out on the town to make him feel at home. Elijah stuck with the team while fellows like Timmy Brown, Ernie Green, Tom Moore and Earl Gros—all fine offensive backs—were dealt away over the years.

Because of Hornung, he never had the big chance—until last year. The Golden Boy, as they called him, came up with a pinched nerve in his neck that made him virtually useless after mid-season. Some people might have thought the Packers would go to Donny Anderson or Jim Grabowski, their much-publicized, high-priced rookies. But this is also the time of year not to go with rookies.

Coach Vince Lombardi stuck Pitts into the breach and he was magnificent. In the 13th game of the season, one they needed to win against Baltimore, Elijah Pitts scored two touchdowns, one on a 42-yard pass. They were the only Packer scores in a 14-10 win.

I don't know Elijah Pitts. I've never talked to him, though I've seen him often enough on the other side of the field. But he's the type of man I'd want on my side in the "four-week" season. There's a sequel ironically, to his story. This year, Pitts tore his Achilles' tendon against Baltimore and went out for the year. So the Pack scoring with the rapidity of an Israeli air offensive—and from every angle. He has run for touchdowns, caught for touchdowns, and passed for touchdowns, and will probably be the first Big 10 player since Tommy Harmon in 1940 to lead the nation in scoring.

This year, he broke Purdue's rushing record for a single game—225 yards against Illinois. He broke the school pass-receiving mark—184 yards against Northwestern. He broke the Boilermaker record for longest run from scrimmage—81 yards.

All this from a guy who was primarily a defensive back last season.

But even on defense he finds ways to score. The first time he got the ball last year—an in-air fumble recovery against Notre Dame—he hit out for a 95-yard touchdown.

He was used only in spots on offense, that is, whenever Purdue needed a TD. He got his hands on the ball a total of 31 times—on offense and defense, and racked up 528 yards, an average of 17 yards gained per play.

When you've got a guy who can do things like that, why keep him on defense?

"We were somewhat disappointed in Leroy as a freshman," said Mollenkopf. "We expected him to be a game-buster, what he is now. But he wasn't then. The problem was a weak knee. After the season he had cartilages removed."

Everyone on Purdue's freshman team plays both ways. So Leroy gained valuable experience, even if he didn't look like the greatest thing at Purdue since Cecil Isbell.

Just before fall practice last year, said Mollenkopf, "Leroy suffered a shoulder separation. He wasn't ready to go until the first game. By then we had our offense worked out. But there was an opening in the defensive back field."

We began using him more on offense, but when our best defensive back, John Charles, got hurt, we decided to keep Leroy mostly on defense.

With the graduation of All-American quarterback Bob Griese, Purdue had to use an ers have made extensive use of a reserve named Ben Wilson, a guy who sat out last year on the Los Angeles 1281 squad and was picked up by the Packers for a minor future draft choice. And Green Bay has kept its winning momentum.

That brings up the Giants' experience with Randy Minniear. A year ago he was a promising rookie from Purdue. Then he broke his leg. When he came to camp this year, you could see he was still favoring it. So he wound up with the Westchester Bulls, a farm team.

Injuries forced the Giants to activate him to replace a tragic knee injury to Tucker Fredrickson made us use him the last three quarters against Pittsburgh. I knew he was nervous. I sensed the excitement in his eyes and movements. So as a quarterback, I played it slow with Randy. I wanted him to get but a few times before I gave him the football. So I held off until the end zone.

Later in the second quarter, near the Steelers' end zone, I handed it to the left and got tackled by the Pittsburgh tacklers. I never got my head and started looking for receivers. Randy had floated to the right and kept running, into the end zone. He was all alone. I threw and he caught it for a touchdown. The first of his career. It was a big play, because the field that picks a place to go and runs a line of play, and the line

NEW YORK—(NEA)—Just not enough minutes in the day for Leroy Keyes. Otherwise, Purdue coach Jack Mollenkopf would give him another job.

That's all Keyes needs. Right now, he's doing the equivalent of cleaning two Augean stables.

"He's one of the first fellows on the field for practice," said Mollenkopf. "He has to be. He's got to get his kick-off and field-goal kicking out of the way. Then he works on his kick-off returns, rushing, blocking, passing and pass receiving. After that, he polishes his defensive assignments."

"He'd be our punter, too, but he must get to the books. He's taking 18 hours of class work."

Keyes, the 6-3, 200-pound junior halfback, has been unknown quantity at the signal-calling spot, sophomore Mike Phipps. Mollenkopf felt that keeping Keyes primarily on offense would lend experience to the offensive backfield.

He still plays defense, but only in spots. Against Notre Dame, for example, he was sent in the second half to stop end Jim Seymour. And the star end caught only one of six passes thrown to him.

Keyes, who was a 5-pound incubator baby, grew up in Newport News, Va. As a senior at an all-Negro high school, Carver, he made all-state honors in basketball, football and track. He received about 85 scholarship offers from colleges for all three sports. Major league baseball clubs also floated feelers around him.

"I was almost set to go to A & T College in Greensboro, N.C.," said Keyes, "but I decided that Big 10 competition and the academic excellence at Purdue would be best in the long run."

Keyes wants to try pro ball. "I'd like to make it on offense," he said. "But the competition is tough. They have a lot of 9-3 and 9-4 men with moves."

"I'm only a 9-8 man with moves."

Tax Assessing Is Life-Blood of Local Government

Yesterday's Daily Bread column is reprinted today because of accidental cutoff of bottom lines in yesterday's edition.

State Representative Talbot Feldt, Jr., threw a bouquet our way in today's news-story reporting that Arkansas' new "mail order" auto licensing system threatens severe tax losses to school districts and local government because it would eliminate the compulsion to assess and pay personal property taxes as required in past years when buying auto tags at the courthouse.

Mr. Feldt wrote your editor: "No one, more than you, understands the importance in Arkansas of the assessment and collection of real and personal taxes at the county level. You have always waged a vigorous fight to that end."

The assemblyman is referring to events running back a generation and perhaps they should be summarized for the benefit of our younger readers.

We figured in a re-assessment program at El Dorado before moving to Hope and consolidating the local newspapers in 1929. In the 1940's we pushed locally for assessment reform, and in the 1950's served as a member of Governor Cherry's Committee of Twenty-Five to draft a 100 per cent assessment law. None of these endeavors was successful — nor were the alternates, our 1955 and 1957 state-wide petitions to halt the expansion of the state sales tax, our belief being that the more our public institutions leaned upon the sales tax the less chance there would be to reform Arkansas' dishonest voluntary property assessment system.

Our position was frequently misunderstood. We, who were trying to do something, were called "a controversial figure" by others who chose to do nothing.

Your editor may be "controversial", but the assessment issue is not. Adequate local taxes are the life-blood of local government. Without support at the local tax level you are abdicating home rule and turning over most taxes and most authority to the state and federal governments — for the government that pays the fiddler is the government that calls the authoritative tune.

Over the years, we weren't able to "sell" our assessment reform idea either state-wide or here at home. Why? One reason is that there is a good bit of laziness in too many people's hearts. They couple the idea of higher assessments with "higher taxes," although this isn't necessarily true of the average individual taxpayer. With property fully and honestly assessed the gross total of assessments might be so large that the average taxpayer's bill would be changed little or not at all. But if he fancies that the present system saves him a tax-dodging dime he doesn't care who gets away with $100.

For the same larcenous reason he rejects local taxation paid direct, with 100 per cent of it spent in the local community, and, slave-like, accepts taxation by the state government, which returns only 75 per cent of his tax dollar to the home community, and to the federal government, whose return on the tax dollar is only 50 per cent.

But the biggest block of all in the road to property assessment reform is the arbitrary and mistaken policy of the very people whose institution tax reform would help — the public school administrators and the Parent-Teacher Associations. We speak from personal knowledge and hard experience.

During the late lamented Hempstead county re-assessment program, and again during the debate over the ill-fated state-wide 100 per cent assessment proposal under Governor Cherry, we explained to school people how assessment reform would work — and got a universal "No."

If property assessments are doubled, we said, the tax levy would be cut in half — and the taxpayer's bill would be unchanged in dollars. The dollar tax wouldn't be raised until the people were given a chance to vote an increased millage on

Commission Warns of Health Crisis

By DOUGLAS B. CORNELL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A presidential commission warned today a national health crisis may "be upon us now or just around the corner."

Already, it said, the system of caring for America's health is in a state of crisis, with costs rising far faster than living expenses and gaps apparent in the quality and distribution of services.

The commission questioned whether the country is getting its money's worth from the increasing billions going into health care since there has been only a small gain in life expectancy. It suggested health might be improved more by comparable expenditures in such areas as sanitation, education and better housing.

Among more than 50 curatives for current problems, the commission prescribed:

— For doctors, dentists and other professionals: Periodic examinations for renewal of their licenses as a prod to keep up their skills and knowledge and to discourage "unnecessary or overly expensive tests and treatments" on the part of some. The commission listed reviews by peers or associates as one of its most important recommendations.

— For hospitals: Financial rewards for efficiency and quality care so the better ones might expand and prosper and the worse ones go out of business.

— Federal financial help to medical and dental schools to improve quality and expand enrollment. Loans to students covering full tuition and living costs, repayable over a period of years or in two years' time given to a national service other than Selective Service.

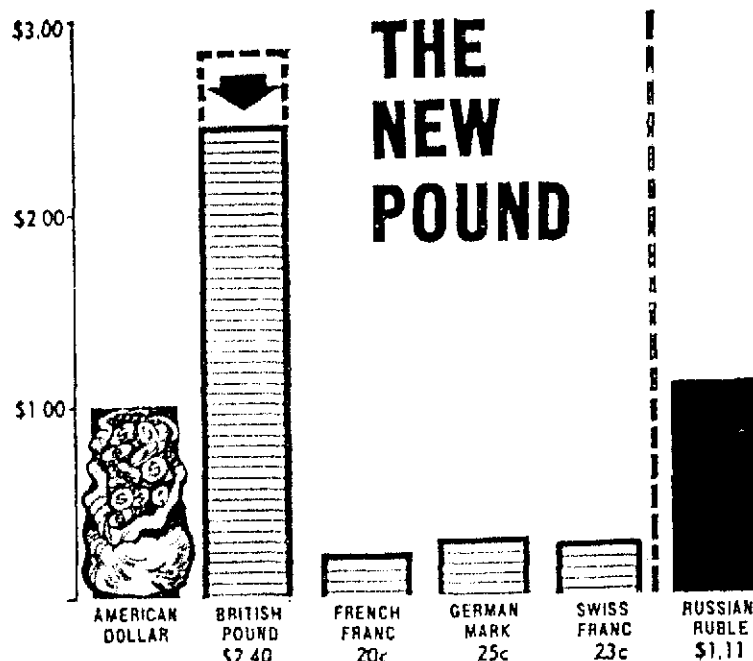

The high-level assessing base, "No," replied the school administrators, loudly and forcibly.

They, too, saps, had the quaint notion that you could raise taxes by arbitrary assessment increases — bypassing the right of the people to vote on millage.

Are they right and am I wrong? A 100 per cent assessment program has just been inaugurated in the state of Florida, with assessments increased and millage reduced proportionately so that the taxpayer's bill is unchanged — and won't be changed until he elects to vote for a higher millage on the higher assessing base. Which is precisely what your "controversial" editor fought for 15 years ago.

Maybe this will give you pause — "controversial" is a weasel word that may depend more on geography than on local opinion. We are on a hard rock trying to save home-rule government here in Arkansas. "Patriots" denounce prodigal spending in Washington — but while you're busy waving the flag don't forget to do some piecing back home. Unless you set your local tax house in order your vaunted American home rule is dead and gone.

Let the fiddler play. But if you're not paying him don't blame your editor if you don't like the tune.

Even at its devalued level, the British pound has a higher face value than other major world currencies. Since World War II, most countries have pegged their money to the dollar. The face value of the dollar, in turn, rests on the policy of the U.S. Treasury to buy and sell gold at $35 an ounce. Should the United States raise the price of gold, it would amount to devaluation of the dollar. The Soviet ruble, its value arbitrarily set by the Kremlin, is outside the interlocking chain of western currencies and not affected by the British devaluation.

Romney Had Better Patch Up Old Car

WASHINGTON (AP) —

George Romney, the one-time auto-maker, is going to have to patch up his old car or build a brand new one if he hopes for a chance among other Republicans racing for the GOP presidential nomination.

The Michigan governor proved he thinks he has a chance by formally announcing his candidacy last week. He was the second Republican to do so. Earlier last week Harold Stassen, who never takes no for an answer, also announced.

But the candidate-image Romney has been presenting incessantly but informally for many months looks a little dilapidated in the public opinion polls. At one time they showed him leading all his party's would-be candidates.

Over the weekend the Gallup poll showed former Vice President Richard M. Nixon leading with 42 per cent, New York's Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller second with 15 per cent, and Romney third with 14 per cent.

This might seem a little discouraging to anyone but Romney for while he has been running around like a man with an 8-cylinder engine, feeling pulses and seeking support, Rockefeller has steadily insisted he doesn't want the nomination.

Bridge Across Arkansas River Okayed

FORT SMITH, Ark. (AP) —

Army Engineers have approved preliminary engineering plans for a new bridge across the Arkansas River between Fort Smith and Van Buren, it was announced today.

The construction of the new bridge and removal of the existing bridge, which carries U.S. 64 and 71 traffic, is expected to cost $6,384,904.

Big Danger of Forest Fires

LITTLE ROCK (AP) —

State Forester Virgil W. Cothren warned Arkansas residents Tuesday that the threat of forest fires had reached a critical stage again.

"Careless burning of trash or debris, even in your own backyard, can start a forest fire," he said. "When you have to burn, burn by the rules."

Cothren said 127 fires destroyed 1,245 acres of timber during the past weekend.

Pictures Show Earth From 22,300 Miles

WASHINGTON (AP) —

Five color photographs released today show what the earth looked like, at intervals of two to three hours last Saturday, from a satellite hovering 22,300 miles above equatorial South America.

In the dramatic sequence, the antarctic remains visible constantly, since it currently is in sunlight all day. The arctic, not actually seen in the films, is in 24-hour darkness at this time of the year.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration said the pictures were taken between 7:30 a.m. and 7:30 p.m.

Man Charged in Bank Burglary

LITTLE ROCK (AP) —

William Wayne Decker, 24, of North Little Rock, has been charged in connection with the Nov. 15 burglary of a branch bank of the First American National Bank.

The FBI said Decker was arrested early Thursday morning at his home.

Authorities said Decker was being held in the Pulaski County jail under $1,500 bond. Officials said a hearing on the charge is scheduled today.

The burglary netted about $8,000 in bills and coins from the branch bank which is located in North Little Rock.

U.N. Delegate Says Turks To Invade

By GERALD MILLER
Associated Press Writer

NICOSIA (AP) — The Greek Cypriot government put the nation on a war footing today as peacekeepers on four fronts worked to head off a clash between the U.S.-equipped armies of Greece and Turkey. The island's U.N. delegate charged the Turks planned to invade by Sunday.

"It is the knowledge of all governments that this weekend has been fixed for the invasion," Cypriot Ambassador Zelon Rossides told the U.N. Security Council in New York.

Reserve officers of the 10,000-man Greek Cypriot national guard were called to duty Friday night amid increasing tension. Bomb blasts rocked Greek communities in three sectors of the island and police called the explosions the "work of Turkish saboteurs."

In Ankara, Turkish Prime Minister Suleyman Demirel called his war policy board, the National Security Council, into a morning session today, but there was no indication of what would be discussed.

Four peace initiatives were under way to pull Greece and Turkey back from what U.N. Secretary-General U Thant called "the brink of war."

The Security Council threw its unanimous support behind an appeal from Thant for "greatest moderation" and his recommendation that Cyprus, Greece and Turkey reduce one cause of friction by eventually eliminating a pact which permits Greek and Turkish troop contingents on the island.

Cyrus Vance, President Johnson's special envoy, scheduled a meeting with Turkish Foreign Minister Ihsan Sabri Caglayangil after returning to Ankara from a day's talks in Athens. Vance would not comment on reports he brought concessions from the Greek government.

Manlio Brosio, secretary-general of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, headed for Athens and Ankara, after both Greece and Turkey agreed to accept his good offices as NATO allies.

Jose Rolz-Bennett, a special U.N. representative, met with Greek leaders after trying to calm officials in Turkey.

Russia urged peace, but a commentator in the Soviet Communist party newspaper Pravda accused "NATO agents" on Cyprus of "artificially whipping up animosity."

Cyprus, about 40 miles off the Turkish coast and 500 miles from the Greek mainland, has been a center of stress for the two nations for centuries. The island's 600,000 inhabitants are predominantly Greek Orthodox, but Turkey claims the territory as historically its own.

The fear of open fighting, calmed somewhat since a crisis in 1964 and the establishment of a U.N. peace keeping force, rose quickly after a clash Nov. 15 in which 25 Turkish-Cypriots were killed.

Health Department Says Knowledge Often Brings Carelessness

By MARY ANITA LASETER
Star Feature Writer

A few days ago the population of the United States reached 200 million. That's a lot of people. And, in many respects, these are more intelligent and better informed people than the world has ever known. But don't strain your arms trying to pat yourselves on the back.

A message from the Hempstead County Health Department shows that increased knowledge often begets carelessness on the part of us humans. Two cases in point are the threats from diphtheria and tetanus, though these diseases were supposedly conquered long ago.

Diphtheria was once one of the greatest scourges of childhood and dangerous to all age groups. Today, through immunization, this disease has been almost conquered in the United States. Most infants have "acquired immunity" at birth, passed on to them by their mothers before they were born. However, this immunity disappears by the time the child is about 6 months old. After that, young children are highly susceptible to diphtheria unless they are immunized.

Some people, by repeated exposures to small numbers or from a surface abrasion. The resistance to the disease or a "natural immunity." But, since diphtheria germs are scarcer now, people have less chance of developing a natural immunity and proper immunization is more important than ever. Still most dangerous in the very young, diphtheria is now becoming almost equally fatal at the other extreme of life — in the very old.

To refresh your memory of facts learned in school courses of basic health: An infected person can spread the disease after he seems entirely well. It can be spread by a "carrier," an apparently healthy person who harbors the germs in his nose or throat. Since diphtheria germs grow easily in milk, particular care should be taken on farms, at dairies, or at distributing plants for milk. Pasteurization kills the germs. The disease is

Waiting GI Billed by U.S. Army

LAKEWOOD, CALIF. (AP) —

A former soldier who sat at home waiting for U.S. Army orders for 223 days in 1966 says the Army has billed him for $1,238 paid him during his extended absence.

John Brown, 24, said he went to the Army at least once a month during the period, to get the Army to solve the problem. He said everyone laughed at the mixup until he told them his hitch was up and he wanted out.

Then the post commander at nearby Ft. MacArthur found out about Brown's predicament.

"He thought I had done a real bad thing," Brown said, "and the record showed it — that I had been honest with the Army. I wanted to do what was right — but they couldn't seem to figure out what 'right' was."

Brown's dispute followed by a week the complaint of Pfc. Joseph A. Smith, who says he spent 18 months of his two-year Army hitch at home at Marysville, Calif., and now wants out of the Army.

Both Brown and Smith were home on leave, with orders to go to Vietnam. Both received instructions cancelling previous orders and telling them to wait for further instructions.

Both said they waited and no further word came. Smith, a draftsman, says he will go to court to get his discharge if the Army doesn't let him out.

The Army is testing Smith at San Francisco to determine what action it will take.

Brown said the Army finally gave him his discharge July 31, 1966, with the notation that he had taken 223 days excessive leave. He said he is credited for three years of service for GI benefits, though he actually served over five years. He also says the Army owes him $1,300 in back pay and allowances.

Viet Cong Launch New Attacks

By GEORGE ESPER
Associated Press Writer

SAIGON (AP) — The Viet Cong launched 19 separate mortar and flame thrower attacks today on South Vietnamese military posts, provincial capitals and hamlets from north of Saigon to the fertile Mekong Delta south of the capital.

The government said its troops killed at least 110 of the raiders in one attack near Phuoc Binh, about 70 miles north of Saigon.

The Communist predawn attacks, most with mortars, left at least 34 persons dead — 17 South Vietnamese soldiers and 17 civilians — and 140 wounded, including 32 military.

Fourteen mortar shellings came in the delta, which the Viet Cong controls, in an apparent effort to show that the government cannot provide adequate protection for the people.

U.S. troops operating north of Saigon also had a brief encounter today with an unknown sized Communist force. A company from the U.S. 25th Infantry Division on a sweep operation 36 miles northwest of Saigon came under heavy small arms, automatic weapons and grenade fire. The 15-minute firefight left two U.S. infantrymen dead and 23 wounded. Communist casualties were not known.

In the attack near Phuoc Binh, the Communists fought men from the same South Vietnamese battalion that killed 143 Viet Cong in the same area Oct. 27. The earlier attack appeared to be a diversionary assault before the Reds' massive but unsuccessful drive to overrun the district headquarters town of Loc Ninh, 30 miles to the west near the Cambodian border.

A South Vietnamese spokesman said today's attack might herald another Communist attempt to take Loc Ninh.

Despite the earlier defeats at Loc Ninh, where the Reds lost a reported 918 killed in one week early this month, and later at Dak To, U.S. officers expressed belief that the enemy high command aims to press a dry season offensive in the jungles north of Saigon.

Near Phuoc Binh today South Vietnamese headquarters said an estimated battalion of guerrilla troops — perhaps 400 men — made three assaults on the perimeter of a company of government troops outnumbered by two-to-one. Each time they were repulsed with the aid of artillery and air strikes, a spokesman said.

Most of the Viet Cong dead were strung just outside the government perimeter. Some enemy soldiers managed to breach the perimeter but were quickly gunned down before they could get to the last line of defense. Government casualties were six killed and 40 wounded.

The South Vietnamese said they captured 39 weapons including five antiaircraft machine guns, two flame throwers, and 22 Chinese Communist AK47 assault rifles.

In the delta, one of the mortar attacks was on the provincial capital of Can Tho, the biggest city in the delta, 75 miles southwest of Saigon. Several rounds of 82mm mortar fire landed near the headquarters of the South Vietnamese 4th Logistical Command, less than a mile south of Can Tho. The headquarters was not damaged, but eight civilians were killed and 17 others wounded.

About 15 miles to the north, the Viet Cong slammed 50 rounds of 82mm mortar into a district and pacification headquarters. Six civilians were killed and 17 wounded.

Cambodian Port Use Concerns U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP) —

Some U.S. military leaders express concern that North Vietnam, Red China and the Soviet Union are planning to use a Cambodian port to get arms and ammunition to Communist forces in South Vietnam.

This development could come if the stepped-up U.S. bombing of land routes from North Vietnam seriously slows up the movement of supplies southward. It is expected that the intensified bombing attacks, begun in August, will begin showing their effects perhaps in January.

The port in neutralist Cambodia is Sihanoukville, on the Gulf of Siam.

Although there have been military studies of a possible quarantine or blockade of the port, it is believed that this country's top civilian defense leaders would not approve of such a step under present conditions.

Washington has refused to authorize the bombing or mining of Halphong Harbor in North Vietnam, where Soviet ships deliver supplies. The reason is a wish to avoid direct confrontation with the Soviet Union or Red China which could lead them to more directly enter the Vietnam war.

It is for much the same reason that a quarantine or blockade of Sihanoukville would likely not be approved.

In addition, the United States is seeking to avoid further trouble with Cambodia's chief of state, Prince Sihanouk, who already is hostile to the American effort in South Vietnam.

Sihanouk professes neutrality in the war, but with or without his approval, U.S. military officials say, his country has been used as a sanctuary by Viet Cong and North Vietnamese forces for rest and resupply purposes.
